Presidents Report- November 2003

There is a lot happening in the world of conservation. Lee Valley Reservoir and the stream that feeds it are currently being renovated. The lake is being drained to remove non-native fish (brookies and rainbows) and the stream was poisoned earlier in the year for the same reason. They will be stocking only Apache trout and grayling in the lake. Game & Fish are hoping that the lake will fill back up after the spring runoff and that there will be very little impact on fishing.

At present there is also a proposal for renovation of several other streams, some of them are very remote but two of them are streams that our members probably fish often. These are the East and West Fork of the Little Colorado River, including Sheep's Crossing, and also all of the West Fork of the Black River. This will entail closing the streams for 2-3 years, building fish barriers, poisoning the streams to remove non-native fish (wild brown trout and stocked rainbows) and restocking them with Apache trout. There has been quite a bit of discussion at the board meetings regarding the issues that surround these projects. We are looking into having someone from the Game & Fish Department attend our January meeting to allow our members the opportunity to get the facts and also to ask questions regarding these projects. As mentioned earlier, these are in the proposal stage but it is sounding like there is a good chance of it happening. Think about any questions or concerns you may have and look for more information in the upcoming newsletters.

The club recently purchased crayfish traps and we are looking to our members to help with the crayfish problem. We bought these traps for our members to use when going on fishing trips anywhere in the state where crayfish are a problem. They are excellent eating (the crayfish, not the traps) and in the two previous newsletters we printed crayfish recipes. When you are out trapping please remember that it is now illegal to transport them live. Look for more information from Eric Larson in this newsletter on how to obtain the traps.

The San Juan outing was a great success. There was an incredible blue winged olive hatch that lasted most of the afternoon on Saturday. Besides dry fly fishing we nymphed and also used the "Steve Berry" method. When you see Steve at the next meeting be sure and ask him about it.

I am hearing good reports coming from the White Mountains. The lakes that are the most active have been Big Lake and Crescent. We have had a pretty warm fall thus far and this means that there is still time to get some fishing in before the lakes freeze over. I am hoping to take a couple of trips up north before it is too late. I did have the opportunity to fish Chevelon Creek this past weekend. I had heard a story of big spawning browns and wanted to go see it for myself. Unfortunately, I fished a few miles up the stream and didn't even see a fish. What I did see was an infestation of crayfish. The water was still fairly warm and I believe that the spawn is yet to come.

Please don't forget that our annual Christmas Banquet is coming up and we are still looking for donations. We are always looking for help from our members and the donations do not have to be fishing related. If you have a hair stylist or restaurant that you frequent, please ask them for a donation. Roy will have letters available at the meeting.

I will see you at the meeting on November 12th. Don't forget to come early to enjoy dinner with your DFC friends. This helps us pay for the meeting hall.

Cinda Howard, DFC President

NOVEMBER 12th PROGRAM

Our November program will feature Mike Kaul from Pinedale, Wyoming. Mike is a Federation of Fly Fisher certified casting instructor and has developed a program that allows you to practice your casting stroke in your home or office. This Short Stick/Desk Chair Fly-Casting Clinic will show how to use short periods of time and simple, readily available equipment to improve our casting stroke. He will also provide the club with a short update of water conditions and new fishing opportunities in the Pinedale area.

November's Meeting Dinner Menu

DFC pays for the rent of the meeting hall by way of selling dinners before each of our meetings. DFC needs to sell 28 meals at each meeting in order to break even. Each meal sells for $8.00 which also includes gratuity. By buying a dinner at the meeting, you can help the club defer the cost of the meeting hall. This month's menu will be: Oven Roasted Chicken with Mashed potatoes and gravy, a veggie and a salad, along with a dessert. You can bet it will be tasty! Won't you come early and join us by sharing dinner with your DFC friends! We would enjoy hearing about your latest fishing trip! Dinner is served from 6pm to 7pm. See you there!

Lee's Ferry Revisited

By Vince Deadmond

It's time to check out the Ferry again. Yes, I know it has not been very good for the last couple of years, but this fall you may want to schedule a few days on this beautiful bit of water. Six Desert Fly Casters went up the weekend of September 19-21, and they all caught fish. Three of the guys caught a lot of fish, (20 fish days), some of the guys caught a few fish in the 16-17 inch range. Most of the fish caught were in the 10 inch to 12 inch range, but they were healthy, muscular, and had beautiful color.

We took it easy going up, and left after the rush hour traffic was off the freeway. We still got into Flagstaff in time for a great lunch at Little America. When we arrived at our lodge, Vermillion Cliffs we checked in, and went directly to the "Walk-In". We managed to catch a few fish, and work out some of the kinks from the road. We ended up back at the lodge for dinner, and yes they still do great job. Everyone checked in early so they could be ready to fish with the guide, Bill McBurney on Saturday.

We had time for breakfast, and yes Charley is still serving breakfast with good humor. We were headed up stream about 8 AM. It is not nearly as crowded as it used to be, we had 7 mile bar to ourselves. We started with three guys fishing the deeper faster water out of the boat with sinking lines, and three guys fishing the gravel bar. The method of fishing the Ferry has changed. At least while we were there the fish had a broad menu that they would eat. They took dries, Royal Wulff, Stimulators, Humpys, they took nymphs, Skuds, Prince Nymphs, Bead Head Zebra Midges, Birds Nests, and Pheasant Tail Nymphs, they took streamers a variety of Woolly Buggers.

Jerry Meyers and Randy Griggs each landed big fish of the day, while Gary Stuck easily caught over 20 fish. This was just a nice little bonus trip we threw together at the last minute. Because we were able to put 6 guys on the boat, share room expense, everyone enjoyed two nights lodging, one day of guided fishing, lunch, and flies for about $160. Not bad! At those prices even you could afford to put together a group to fish Lee's Ferry. Give me a call when you get it together!

Redfishing in Texas

By Ann Bounds

Ted and I had planned our first Redfish saltwater trip to South Padre Island, Texas, in conjunction with the International Women Fly Fishers Festival which was being held there at the same time. We had been practicing our casting for months and felt we were ready for Redfish! We stayed on South Padre Island one night and met our Guide the next day. We had perfect weather and did boat casting all day and caught plenty of terrific fish. We caught King Mackerel along the jetties out in the ocean, then caught Redfish on the flats all day long. What fun it was to catch them on the fly! They will put a smile on your face that lasts all day long. We fished from morning to dinner time and forgot to eat lunch. That's how great the fishing was! We were tired by the end of the first day ... and hungry, but the excitement of the day was invigorating.

The next day we meet Dr. Larry Allen and Marie at the airport and were their guests at Port Mansfield. Again we had perfect weather for a couple of more days. We caught Redfish, Sea Trout, Sheepshead, Flounder, Croackers, and Black Drum and probably something else, but can only remember these fish right now. Fishing was great. We would fish all day, come in for dinner, catch a couple of hours of sleep, then up at midnight to fish some more. We'd fish to 2am, come home and sleep some more, then get up at 6am and do it all over again! It was great, what great fishing! Ted and I already fell in love with saltwater fishing after the first day, but now ... we're hooked on it! We will definitely be doing this again!

Towards the end of our trip, bad weather was encroaching upon us. But we fished in 15 and 20-knot winds, until the storm finally was too great for us and we had to quit fishing. My "little chicken wing" was give out!

On Sunday we drove back out to South Padre Island and met several women of IWFF. The convention was good. Women from all over the world attended. Earlier in the week, I had met women on the dock from Kansas and Missouri when we were waiting for our Guide on our first day of fishing. Everyone was introduced around and good time was had by all!

This is definitely a "Redo" trip!

Salmon Fishing Without A Fly Rod

By Eric Larsen...

My brother-in-law lives in Grants Pass, Oregon and I had the pleasure of making the 2400 mile round trip in mid-October to pick up a sailboat he had given to my 17-year-old son. On the trip up, we decided to drive straight through for 22 hours. The next day, after running a few errands, the suggestion was made to hike to a place called Rainie Falls on the Rogue River. YES! Here was my 3-hour window in the whole trip to do some fishing. We stop in the little hamlet of Merlin, Oregon where I get my 1-day fishing license and visit the local fly shop. The old guy who owns the fly shop told me that the salmon (Chinook and Pacific Coho) were spawning but I could fish for them below Hog Creek. We whip out a map and sure enough Rainie Falls is below Hog Creek and "the fish like collect in the area by where you park your car" the fly shop owner tells me. I tell him I have a Sage 5 wt rod. He asks, "did you bring your trout flies like some nymphs?" and I say "Nope." He digs around in his fly boxes that are about empty and I help him get rid of the flies that were left. As I leave the store, the owner tells me, "Cast across the river let the fly drift downriver and they should strike at the end of the drift. Don't let them buffalo you, they still act like trout!"

We hop in my brother-in-law's Suburban and go downriver to hike to Rainie Falls and to, better yet, go salmon fishing with a 5 wt. As I get out of the Suburban at designated parking spot, I look at the pool below the road to see at 24-inch Coho rise to the surface like a rainbow after a mayfly. Except this one had that sea gull shape snout of a spawning salmon. I get ready to say "later" to my wife, son and brother-in-law while the pre-fishing adrenaline is coursing through my veins. Okay, I got my license, reel, waders (which I didn't need) and fly rod....NO fly rod. Call it a senior moment, white-line fever or just plain absentmindedness. The Sage 5wt I was about to sacrifice to fishing gods was safely packed away in the back seat of the truck at the house in Grants Pass. There wasn't time to drive back and get it and come back again and try to fish.

CONSERVATION NOTESwith Eric Larsen

Crayfish Traps: As mentioned in last month's newsletter, the club has crayfish traps to us for those who want to go out and catch some dinner. Remember, you need to have a valid Arizona fishing license. The crayfish cannot be transported live so you need to take them home dead. I will bring some survey forms to next month's meeting to fill out also so the AZFG can keep track of where crayfish are being caught.

I was trying to think of a way out of using sign-out sheets to check the traps out but haven't come up with a better idea yet. Doc Nickel will bring the traps to the meetings and you can sign out for them. I'll be the keeper of the list and track who has the traps. I'm also hoping to get a disinfectant to bring to the meeting that you can use. Otherwise, soak the traps for a few minutes in 10% bleach solution to disinfect. We don't want to spread disease while trapping the little critters.

Native Species Recovery: This activity will slow up over the winter months. Hopefully, however we will get some results of the public process on the Apache Trout program. There may be some potential work going on the West Fork Oak Creek regarding Gila Trout recovery. DFC was requested to make a donation for this effort but the Board voted not to. There are many issues that get wound up in the native species recovery projects. One of them is the poor showing to-date in Arizona. The Apache and Gila projects are struggling at best. So, does that mean to continue forward anyway? Be more selective in the renovation and re-introduction process? What about habitat enrichment and invasive pests such as the crayfish? Does the club need better education on these projects? The Apache Recovery Plan ignores the crayfish issue while the Gila Recovery Plan acknowledges crayfish infestation represents a threat. One of the things the Board would like to do is to invite the Fish and Game to one of our meetings to ask questions and voice your concerns to them directly. This probably won't happen until February or March. In the meantime, I encourage you to think about these programs. How you feel personally about them and what direction and/or position you would like to see the club take on these particular recovery projects. To support these (or any other conservation) projects, it's going to come down making monetary donations to the project efforts and/or have volunteers to participate in the work outings.

Along as I was there, I might as well go on the 3 mile round trip hike to Rainie Falls. As I was walking along the river kicking myself about forgetting the bloody fly rod I notice the weather is really quite nice. The leaves are starting to change and my son mentions how this looks like the trail in the first movie of "Lord of the Rings." I noticed the Rogue does have very similar topography as the pictures Jerry and Doc Frye had shown at the October DFC meeting. Rainie Falls is like a big rapid that drops 6-7 feet. While we were resting by the falls, out of the water comes a salmon trying to jump up the falls. We sat there cheering on the fish while they make this incredible journey up river. Mother Nature may have told the salmon where to spawn but she sure didn't tell them how to get there. It is truly a trial-and-error process. There were quite a few that looked like slabs of bacon leaping out of the water. I didn't get to fish for the salmon but I got to see something I would not have seen otherwise. I would like to go to New Zealand and fish but we have our own slice of NZ right here in the West. When I was in Grants Pass this past June I went out with a guide and my nephew caught a 26 pound King salmon on conventional tackle. I just have to go back next fall and give it shot with my 5wt Sage.

Library and Video Reminder

The end of the year is approaching, and it is time to choose a new board. I would like to remind everyone to please bring any books or videos that you may have out to the November meeting. I would like to have everything returned so that whoever chooses to take on the library responsibilities next year will not have to track down books and tapes from this year. Thanks.

What makes this fly my fly of the month The picture above is from the Big Lake fishing trip last year. This is a 21 inch and about 4 pound cutthroat. My son caught a 19 incher right after I landed the fish in the picture. A picture is worth a million words. The Big Lake Carey fly does best when fished in low light conditions. The olive version of the fly is a good bet too. The fly is very easy and quick to tie. Some friends went fishing at Big Lake in mid-October and the water temp was still in the 60's. Cooler weather is in the forecast so those temps will start to come down and fishing will be outstanding.

DFC 2nd Annual San Juan Outing BWO's, Rainbows, Browns, and other important cosmic events.

By Ted Bounds

The Desert Fly casters made the 2nd annual migration to the San Juan River in New Mexico October 2nd through the 5th this year. To say the least, a good time was had by all.

I arrived a day early on Wednesday October 1st to get a head start on the much anticipated fishing. The fishing didn't disappoint. Ann and I got checked in at Chuck Rizuto's and headed for the Texas Hole with about an hour or so of daylight left. I was having so much fun that I stayed until I had to use a light to wade back to the bank. I landed 5 trout- two of them pushing 23" in the hour and a half or so that we got to fish on Wednesday on Simi Seal leach patterns. Great start to the trip. After dinner at the Sportsmans Inn we bedded down to get an early start on Thursday.

When we got up on Thursday we didn't rush to the river. The wind was blowing and it was spitting rain intermittently. Ann and I finally bundled up and headed down to the church parking lot. While we were rigging up Ann said "It's way to cold for me. I think I'll go back to the room and tie some flies." I took her back to the room and headed to the river again. I walked from the Church parking lot to the upper flats to fish the area around the beaver house, one of my old standby spots. I fished various midge patterns for the next couple of hours with limited success. I changed patterns and colors and wasn't catching anything except cold fingers. I was getting plenty of practice casting in a nasty wind and trying to mend against the wind. I was improving my techniques and thinking of maybe heading back to the room to regroup and get warm when I met a fellow named Dick Brown from Pennsylvania. We exchanged names and asked the usual questions about how our day of fishing was going. I told Dick that my day had been enjoyable but not productive. He said he had enjoyed a great morning and while he was telling me this he hooked and landed another nice rainbow. I asked him what pattern he was using and he showed me a crème colored midge pupa and said he had caught every fish he had landed on the simple pattern that morning. I had some that I had tied in my box that were similar in color. They were the only ones I hadn't tried. I switched to the crème midge and landed four fish in about a dozen casts from the same run I had been pounding for an hour with different colors. I guess the lesson here is if what you are using isn't working try something else. Doesn't cost anything to change flies. An hour or so later and another half dozen fish I figured I had caught enough fish for one day and headed for the room to get some lunch and warm up.

When I got off the water and back to the room it was about 3 pm and other DFC members were starting to arrive. I went over to the fly shop at Rizuto's to BS with our host Chuck Rizuto and see how the day had been with other anglers who were out in the raw weather giving it a try. Chuck had a group of DFC members in the shop showing them how to rig up their nymphs and giving lots of free advice on how to fish nymphs on the San Juan. Chuck doesn't fish the river much anymore, but there is no one who knows the river better or has more knowledge about the river and techniques than Chuck. Whenever he gives advice I definitely listen. Anything that Chuck has ever told me has worked when I tried it. Chuck's a great host and will help anyone who asks. He's a great resource, an all around nice guy and truly wants everyone who comes to the San Juan to have a quality fishing experience. The rest of the DFC group wandered in on Thursday afternoon and we all began to anticipate our day of guided fishing on Friday. I was hoping for better weather and a good day of fishing on Friday.

Friday morning was cloudy but no rain and the wind had laid down to a breeze. Ann and I were fishing with our old friend and favorite guide Rick Hooley. We have been fishing with Rick at the San Juan for several years and have had many great days fishing with Rick. He's a local and has been guiding on the river since he was in high school. Rick picked us up at Rizuto's at 7:30 am. We went to the Texas hole, launched the drift boat, and Rick rigged us up and stared our float trip. We fished midges and baetis nymphs to start and Rick had us into fish right away. We made our way down river and pulled into one of Rick's favorite back channels and got out of the boat to wade and fish for a while. Rick said this back channel had been holding a lot of nice fish recently. By now there were lots of drift boats on the river, but we had our spot occupied. Now if the fish would just cooperate. As we began to wade we could see lots of fish in the shallow water of the back channel. We were sight casting to the fish, trying to target the bigger fish with our nymphs. We were catching lots of nice fish. The cloud cover stayed with us and soon there was a nice hatch of blue winged olive mayflies on the water looking like tiny sailboats floating along on the surface. The fish were looking up and there were more and more heads breaking the surface of the water and making the delightful gulping sound that trout make when they are eating mayflies off the surface of the water. Before long we had taken the nymphs off our leaders and replaced them with size 20 parachute blue winged olive dry fly patterns. It was amazing how many big rainbows were in our little back channel. We jerked some of our flies out of the mouth of the trout and broke off a few flies with overly aggressive hook sets. When we got the initial adrenaline rush under control we caught a ridiculous number of big fish on the tiny dry flies.

The trick is to let the fish come up and eat the fly and don't set the hook until the head goes back under the surface. Then you lift the rod-don't jerk it- and you are attached to a big trout with a piece of 6x tippet and the fun begins. I've known this for a long time, but it's still hard to do on the first fish that inhales your fly. The hatch in the back channel lasted until about noon when the sun came out. The blue winged olives hatch in prolific numbers as long as it is cloudy, and the hatch stops when bright sun hits the water. We were hoping for more cloud cover as the day went on. We ate lunch on the bank of our back channel and decided to head down river after lunch. By then most of the other drift boats were past us and we had water that had been rested a little to fish. We spent the rest of the day fishing nymphs when the sun was out and going back to dries when we had cloud cover and the BWO's would start again. By the time we got to the take out we had enjoyed another great day of fishing with Rick. Then it was time to go to the room for a cold beer and a hot shower and go to the DFC banquet at the Sportsmans Inn. After a great meal of BBQ ribs and a few drinks we went back to the fly shop and everyone told of their highlights of the day and awards were given for biggest fish, most fish, littlest fish. In years past we gave a booby prize for the unfortunate angler who caught no fish, but no one qualified this year. There was also a nice gift given to Chuck Rizuto for his hospitality and continued support of DFC. Kudos to Georganne Jannenga for taking the time to buy the awards and gifts.

Saturday found us all fishing on our own at various spots on the river. Let me rephrase that. All the DFC members were fishing on their own except Jack Yamagata and Gary Shotz. The guide who was to take them on Friday had a car accident on his way to the river Friday, so their guide day was Saturday. Ann and I and several other DFC members went to the Texas Hole in the afternoon to see if we could find some trout who were willing to play. The good weather and cloud cover were still with us. I walked into a spot maybe 20 yards down stream from the boat launch. Jack and Gary were with their guide anchored up in the drift boat in the same area as well as Gerry and Kitty Weimelt who had decided to go guided for a second day. This sounds like it may have been a little crowded in the Texas Hole. However, there were so many fish rising to the BWO's that you could cast in just about any direction and your fly would float over a feeding fish. I stood in the same spot for about four hours and caught fish after fish on the size 20 bwo parachute. When the sun would come out the action would stop for a few minutes, but as soon as the clouds came back we were all back in business. What a great way to end a great trip. Many thanks to Cinda Howard for all the hard work she did to arrange the trip again this year. I've already put this one on my calendar for next year and you should too.

2003 DFC Christmas Banquet

The 2003 DFC Christmas Banquet is on December 10th at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 644 E. Chandler Blvd., Chandler, AZ.

See the attached map. Chandler Boulevard is 4 1/2 miles south of the Superstition Freeway (U.S. 60). The Knights of Columbus Hall is located east of Arizona Avenue / Country Club Drive, and west of McQueen Road / Mesa Drive, in Chandler.

This is DFC's annual fundraising banquet. It is a "Pot Luck" dinner. Ham, turkey & gravy will be provided. This is just a reminder to please bring a side dish or desert to share. Those of you whose last name starts with A - R please bring a side dish. Those whose last name starts with S - Z please bring a desert. If you are to bring a side dish but won't be arriving until after 6:15 pm, please bring a desert.

Volunteers for clean-up afterwards would be greatly appreciated.

The success of the raffle depends on donations from our members. Please donate anything you think others might find of interest, you can even solicit gift certificates from your favorite restaurant. Items do not need to be related to flyfishing. For those of you wishing to donate something to the raffle, please contact Roy at (480) 917-7630, or bring the donation to the November meeting. While all donations are appreciated, the earlier you can provide them to me the easier it is to incorporate the donations into the raffle.

For newcomers, and those who have forgotten how the raffle works, here's the scoop:

1. Most prizes that are valued at $25 or more are raffled as "Bucket Prizes". There are containers located next to the prizes.

Place your ticket or as many tickets as you wish into the "Bucket" for the prize you'd like to win. The winner for that prize will be drawn from the tickets in the corresponding "Bucket". Ticket cost: $1 each.

2. Bonus Prizes are of equal or higher value and are also raffled in this manner. (see explanation below for Bonus Prizes)

3. Deck of Cards Raffle. A maximum of 52 (+ maybe jokers) chances will be sold for this prize. Purchasers will receive one playing card for each chance purchased. Winner will be drawn from a corresponding deck. Ticket cost: $10 each.

4. Multi-Prize Table. These are prizes of lesser value. Drawings are made from one "Bucket". Choose your prize as your number or name is called. Ticket cost: $1 each.

5. Silent Auction items are of substantial but undetermined value. Write your name and the amount you bid on the pad provided. Highest bidder by a certain time gets the prize for the amount bid.

6. Live Auction. Usual vocal auction.

Tickets are sold as follows: Bucket Prize tickets are sold for $1 each. For every $25 in $1 tickets purchased, a $25 Bonus Prize ticket is issued. For every $50 in $1 tickets purchased, one $50 Bonus Prize ticket and two $25 Bonus Prize tickets are issued. For $100 in $1 tickets purchased, one $100 Bonus Prize ticket, two $50 Bonus Prize tickets and four $25 Bonus Prize tickets are issued. You can use address labels, a return address stamp, or write your name on the back of the ticket to help identify the ticket stubs you deposit in the "Buckets".

Bent or otherwise mutilated tickets deposited in the buckets will be disqualified!!!
